CAMBRIDGE GLOBAL ASSET MANAGEMENT PHILOSOPHY

Each pillar of Cambridge's investment philosophy was conceived to help compound client wealth over the long term. It dictates how the team operates, what it stands for and what differentiates Cambridge from the competition.

The three pillars of investment management at Cambridge are:

- 1 True Active Management

Cambridge's portfolios are constructed using a bottom-up approach, while providing diversification across sectors and, where appropriate, asset classes and geographies. The team combines the best opportunities given the mandate of a specific fund. This results in a very high "active share" compared to many peers. As active share is the percentage of a portfolio that differs from the underlying benchmark, a high active share has the potential to provide opportunities for outperformance.
- 2 Focus on Absolute Returns

Cambridge understands that wealth creation is a marathon and not a sprint. It is about consistently compounding value over time. Cambridge's research process is heavily geared towards understanding risks and analyzing the key variables such as revenue, margins, networking capital, balance sheets, historic financials through cycles, and other important building an a risk reward calculation. Cambridge believes that investing in good companies means the upside can take care of itself.
- 3 Manager Alignment

Cambridge has long believed that owners make better decisions than managers. As a result, the team tries to identify those companies and management teams whose wealth and compensation are tied directly to driving shareholder value creation over time. When Cambridge entrusts a company's management with investors' capital they want to make sure that management's motivations are aligned with those of shareholders. This element of Cambridge's investment philosophy extends to Cambridge itself: Compensation of team members is linked to the performance of their funds.
